Bringing Technology to Horse Racing by Devonmarker

Article published on July 30th 2012 | Sports

When talking about the sport of horse racing, one might not get the idea of technology, but as given in the following content, the sport has the potential to be the real innovators in sports entertainment and education.

As most of us know, the internet technology is growing like anything else in the current stage and most of the industries are making use of this technology and this is true in the case of horse racing industry as well. This industry has made optimum usage of the database driven back end processes and e-commerce in a better manner like many other industries.

With its development, the World Wide Web can now deliver real time 3D demonstrations of actual races over the broadband internet connection and this requires the users to place transponders (devices for getting a radio signal) on each horse in such a way that more than a single reading per second of the positions of the horses can be gathered in a dynamic manner.

In the United Kingdom, some companies are making use of this technology and the data collected with the help of this method is used as an education tool. With this technology, historical comparisons, speed bursts and sectional times can be dissected, explained and displayed on the World Wide Web and on televisions. Some technologically developed companies possess the skill to take this data and convert into 3D animations that can be controlled by the viewers.

Even though, online betting can be made for horse racing, there are still some enthusiasts, who wish to visit in person to the racing spots and they wish to bet on their favorite horses or on their favorite rider. For people, who are new to this world there are websites offering horse racing tips and they offer tips not only for the actual sportsmen, but tips can be obtained by the betters as well.

When it comes to betting, there are different types like win bet, place bet and show bet. Of these a win bet pays for the better if the horse wins the race and the second type pays if it comes either first or second and the third type pays if the horse comes in the first three positions. The minimum bet amount for all these types is 2 dollars.

Like the above-mentioned horse racing betting information, many other horse racing tips are also offered by some of the best sites for help out horse racing enthusiasts.
