The Right Club for a Perfect Game

by Shelley Cruise

Article published on February 14th 2012 | Sports

There are many pastimes that you might choose from depending on your preference. Of them, the most relaxing pastime, according to some, is golf. The sport that became a major theme of the hit movie 'The Greatest Game Ever Played' have attracted the attention of many. People like Shia Labeouf and Tiger Woods have redefined the game altogether. For golf lovers, thus, a golf club is one such accessory that shall give them optimum result while they play the game.

Choosing the right golf club may be a little difficult for beginners. As a matter of fact, the general composition of a club is that of a shaft with a grip and a club head. There are many types that are used for different shots that one wants to make. For instance, a chipper is a type which is made for low speed swings that you want to make. This would not reach further than 23 meters. Similarly, there are the woods that are specifically designed to make long shots along the golf course. These usually have a large head and long shafts to meet the desired result.

The golf course may be rough or there may be instances when the ball is shot into the woods or in difficult portions of the course. During such instances, an iron golf club can be used to oneâ€™s advantage. They usually have flat heads and have variations of long, short and medium iron that may be used for varied shots.

Lofting the ball desirably is also an issue for golf players. People who are new to the sport may not be familiar with which item to use. For that reason, there are golf clubs that fall under the category of what are known as wedges. These are heavier than the iron ones discussed above. Lofts of as much as 40 degrees can be smoothly achieved through the use of such clubs. This particular variant also serves as a better and more useful version of the putter. While using the latter, a golf player may have to strike harder at the ball to achieve the loft of 40 degrees. So, for reasons of a smooth result regarding lofts, the wedge is a convenient option.

There are many stores that provide an entire set of golf clubs and at affordable rates. But experts would suggest that you go for a good set of golf equipments regardless of the cost. The reason is that expensive as they may seem, they promise better results than their cheaper counterparts.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/sports-articles/the-right-club-for-a-perfect-game.htm - Article Side

Shelley Cruise - About Author:
4moles is providing the pleasure to book a Golf Club and a Golf Courses to play golf and discussion here in golf forum where an all new golf world awaits you. Embark on the mesmerizing journey to feel the game on a whole new level.

Article Keywords:
Golf Club, Golf Courses

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!