Acer Releases Tablet in U.S. Market

by Nicoleflourweens

Article published on January 27th 2012 | Technology

The Acer Company has unveiled its A200 tablet at the Shopper Electronic show hosted in Las Vegas earlier this year and many other firms products are also been released in the same show. This gadget is already available for sale in the United States market.

Currently the 16GB version of this tablet is available in the market and the 8GB version will be arriving shortly. In the cost aspect, the 16GB A200 tablet would cost around $349.99 and 8GB will remain $20 lesser than that of the 16GB ones. The size of the tablet is 10â€• approximately.

For the people who are planning to buy large tablet with affordable cost, there are few points that you need to take into account about the tablet A200 of Acer. Even though it is a brand new model, it completely based on last yearâ€™s tablet technology.

The specifications of this tablet are, it works on Android OS (3.2 version and upgradable), has dual-core Nvidia Tegra 2 processor and 1GB of RAM.

Last year a much similar tablet A500 was released which was price tagged at $449, the A200 model also uses the same 1280x800 pixel display. It provides ports for inserting the USB keys, micro USB, Wi-Fi, microSD memory card slot and 2 mega pixel front view camera.

The eye catching point regarding the Acer A200 tablet is that it comes in light weight and $100 less than the earlier version.

An expert who has reviewed the product in the show said that this tablet will certainly impress many people and also added that many Android tablets with more capable hardware and functionality are coming soon to the market and sales will rely on how the customers perceive in A200.

Many guest in the show saw this product, all of them are impressed particularly with the video of the A200 at the Android Central.

The plus points of this gadget are the software customization, the appearance of the hardware, the Ring launcher, integrated screenshot capture functionality and also the battery backup of 8hrs before needing recharging.

It is expected the new Acer A200 Android Tablet will released in Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia and all other parts of the world later this year.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/technology-articles/acer-releases-tablet-in-u-s-market.htm - Article Side

Nicoleflourweens - About Author:
For latest news on android please visit the website a android mag

Article Keywords:

android, android mag

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!