The next-generation networks (ngns) are putting huge stress behind the operational and business support systems bss oss. The diversity in providing service by these systems is huge and it can be huge challenge than a mere and simple voice and data process. Earlier a system was able to offer some extent of automation and it resulted in the decrease of the operating costs and improved service provided to the customers. Next generation bss oss goes one step further as it can directly take part in the tactical objectives of any organization. With the introduction of ip in the market, the blockades that prevented the entry at certain segments in the market were done away with forever. This has helped the new boys in the business flourish in no time at all. With pioneering services using at the forefront without having a proper infrastructure, the new boys can enjoy all the facilities of a cut-throat market like small expenses and no barricades to prevent the introduction of their new services. This is the advantage of using the next generation bss oss systems. On the other hand, the big boys in the business are repeatedly facing limitations in the number of services they earlier provided.

The current famed businessperson should welcome this change and use it to increase their sales. It should always be remembered that the bss oss needs for the established businesspersons and the new entrants are different. These strategic business functions are reliable enough to produce the best in such a competitive environment. They should be planned and built according to the needs of a particular business without the chance of too many errors in them. One prototype should not be unnecessarily used in the planning for another business. The bss oss systems should be supple enough to be modified at any moment with the ever-changing demands of the environment without much need of passing through rigorous tests
