Users of JVC (such as JVC Everio), Panasonic, and Canon MOD Camcorders are often troubled with how to playing or editing recorded MOD video files on Mac as below.

Q1: Xrns2XMod, the mod / xm converter from renoise song format, is now also a tool

In order to make it work, download latest binary version of Xrns2XMod

Q2: MOD or TOD Files? A Conversion Method

Ann Bens, on the CS4 forum, posted this LINK to a possible solution for working with MOD & TOD files. Might be of use, if you have a JVC (could work with some other, similar cameras) and want to work with these files in any flavor of Premiere. As I do not shoot to MOD, or TOD, I have not tried it, and cannot vouch for how well it works.

In fact, only need to download a MOD Converter for Mac for resolving this problem.

MOD Converter Mac convert MOD files recorded by JVC, Panasonic, and Sony camcorders to MP4, 3GP, AVI, DV, MPG, MPEG-4, FLV, MOV, 3G2, VOB, MP3, FLAC, MKA, OGG, WAV, AC3, etc and other popular video and audio format on Mac. Then you can play back MOD files on portable devices (iPad, iPod, iPhone, iPhone 4, Nexus one, Droid, HTC Magic, etc, or edit with video editors like iMovie, FCE, Avid. Adobe Premiere, Final Cut Pro, etc.

Key features about MOD Converter Mac

1. Batch convert MOD files recorded by JVC, Panasonic, and Sony camcorders.

2. Convert MOD file to portable device, editing software, DVD burning tool.

3. Put and play your MOD video on iPad, iPhone, iPhone 4, iPod, Android phones, Apple TV, HTPC etc.
