RIM Officially Said That BlackBerry 10 OS Will Be Installed in PlayBook by Tom Broad

Article published on March 22nd 2012 | Technology

In the tablet market, BlackBerry PlayBook is recognized as the prominent representative of RIM. Almost $465 million has been has been spent by the company on this tablet. The PlayBook is the center of attraction for RIM. Till today, a lot of improvements have been made in this tablet. The device is going to get the most anticipated update now. The new update will include the BlackBerry 10 OS.

In December 2011, it was witnessed that the BlackBerry X OS was renamed by RIM to BlackBerry 10 OS. Moreover, some major changes were made to the platform. It seems that the manufacturer has decided to compete with Android OS of Google. It is being expected that the same OS will be installed to all BlackBerry tables and smartphones soon in the coming time.

Rob Orr, the vice president of product management at RIM confirmed the availability of the update for the BlackBerry PlayBook. According to Orr, the tablet will get the update in OS as soon as the first smartphone running latest OS is launched. It is expected that the phone will come in third or fourth quarter of 2012. So, in the winter season, users will be able to acquire the PlayBook with BlackBerry 10 update. Rob Orr said that it has been told a number of times by RIM officials that their first BB10 handset will be available till the end of the year 2012, and they still stand by their words. After the launch, BB10 will be brought to PlayBook at some point of time.

The fact cannot be denied that this is wonderful news for those who keep the PlayBook. The PlayBook is being used by a large number of users at the moment. This brilliant tablet comes available with a number of features as per the demands of todayâ€™s users. It has a 5 MP snapper with autofocus feature. Moreover, you get GPRS and Wi-Fi for connecting internet on it. The tablet also comprises of media player and video player for the purpose of entertainment. Office and PDF documents can be read on the large screen of the tablet with the help of document viewer feature. In addition, you also get the data transfer options like Bluetooth connectivity and USB port in the PlayBook. The gadget has dual-core 1 GHz Cortex-A9 processor. Besides, you can get it with internal memory of 16/32/64 GB.

It is hoped that the new update of the BlackBerry PlayBook with improved functionality will make more customer-base for RIM.
