Gold prospecting has been a passion for many and who would forget the gold rush of the early 19th century. People try their luck in gold prospecting and become rich overnight. But, before there is more to be learnt before actually beginning your gold prospecting. It is very important on your part to understand the different methods that are used in finding gold and the workings of sluice boxes and pans. There are plenty of ideas found on the internet about gold prospecting equipment and on gold prospecting supplies that can be read and information on it gathered.

Understanding requirements in gold prospecting

In gold prospecting, the common gold prospecting equipment is sluice box and gold pan. The gold pan can be found cheap and most of them prefer to buy black plastic, the reason because, gold tends to show up against the backdrop that is black. The sluices boxes on the other hand could be a bit expensive. However, if you have the art in you, you could build for yourself a sluice box which could be quite simple. You can also find plenty of outfitters selling gold prospecting supplies to people interested in finding gold. But if you have it in you, then why buy, when you yourself can build the gold prospecting supplies.

Starting your gold prospecting

Once you are done getting ready the gold prospecting equipment, you can now start to find a suitable place from where you can find the treasure of your dreams and become rich. The best place is to start is in finding a river, as it is said that plenty of gold is still hiding in the bottom of the streams and rivers. It is always better to check on the internet or from books about rivers and streams that were once used for gold prospecting, as who knows when lady luck might strike you.
