Best of North India Tours by Lincoln Harris

Article published on April 19th 2012 | Travel

No North India tour would be complete without a visit to Rajasthan. Several Rajasthan tour packages are available to suit your particular interest. Rajasthan is famous for its forts, palaces and culture. There are several places of historical importance in Rajasthan. These include the palaces that dot the landscape in Jaipur, the many lakes that are to be found in the beautiful city of Udaipur, and the forts built in the deserts of Jaisalmer, Bikaner and Jodhpur. Ranthambore is a national park, and is a good place to visit if you are interested in wild life. Pushkar hosts an annual fair, which is basically held for the buying and selling of camels. This happens in November each year.Visiting this fair gives you a good insight into the life of the ordinary people of Rajasthan. So, when you are discussing and finalizing about your Rajasthan tour packages, remember to verify if all of the places mentioned above are included. Going to these places will truly make your North India tour memorable.

Kerala â€“ Gods Own Country

Nestling on the southern-most aspect of Indiaâ€™s western sea board is the verdant state of Kerala. Like all of the other states of India, Kerala too offers a unique and heady blend of colour, customs, dances, food and history. Famed for its world-renowned ayurvedic rejuvenation therapy, Kerala offers you many opportunities to kick back and relax. You can combine a holiday in an exotic location with heath-regaining therapy that will refresh you and get you back on the rails.

Kerala tourism offers many treats other than Ayurveda. There are golden beaches to visit as the whole of the western border of Kerala is washed by the Arabian Sea. There are interesting places to visit in Trivandrum, and lovely excursions to be made in the backwaters of Alleppey. You can visit Aranmula, the only place in the world where craftsmen still practice the art of hand-making mirrors using only metal. The cuisine of Kerala is distinctive, and you can sample a host of mouth-watering dishes still prepared painstakingly, the old-fashioned way. If you enjoy visiting ancient temples, Guruvayoor and Shabarimala are places you could visit.

Plan A North India Tour With Experts

While India is a very interesting destination, you will need experts to arrange and manage your holiday trip for you. In order to have a hassle-free experience, make sure you get in touch with an experienced team.
