The beaches found in Barcelona are quite impressive especially because the responsible people ensure that the sea and sand in general remain clean hence very attractive and inviting to the visitors who come to the beaches to have some fun during holidays. The beaches are also very friendly and the disabled can also have access.

You will find important things such as sun beds, showers and even lifeguards who are available in different seasons as a way of keeping the people safe. The beaches in Barcelona are magnets to tourists and they are in plenty in that you can spend as much time as you feel necessary on the beach you feel is best for you.

Mar Bella: this is the only naturist beach in Barcelona and is situated behind a hillock that is full of bamboo. You will find all kinds of activities and sports to take part in and the equipment you need are in plenty and at affordable prices. There is a quiet beautiful park nearby that is ideal for picnics and siestas under the beautiful shady trees.

Barceloneta: this beach is very long and wide and has plenty of eateries dealing mainly in American delicacies. You will also find a Catalan restaurant in which you can relax and enjoy a meal after having all the fun in the sea and sand. It is a beach that is quite populated and noisy and it is important to be aware of this before choosing to spend time on it.

Nova Icaria: one of the most crowded especially because it is near the urban center Olympic Marina, the beach is golden and wide and has all kinds of foods. You will find beach bars, restaurants and other entertainment joints. You will therefore easily manage to relax and eat something delicious after a day full of activity and energy on the cool waters and warm sand.

Bogatell: it is a beautiful beach that has stone walkway that offers the perfect ground for rollerblading, cycling and jogging. You will be amazed at how quiet the beach can be something that has been made possible by the high promenaded that keeps traffic noise at bay. Although there are no beach bars here, you can still have something ice at the large restaurants situated on the promenade.

These are some of the beaches in Barcelona that are interesting and worth taking time to enjoy the different things they have to offer alongside the natural beauty.
