Estepona is the city of beaches by Jordan Thompson

Article published on January 11th 2012 | Travel

There are many people that love to spend times at the beaches whenever they are free. They like to enjoy various kinds of water sports along with sun bathing. The excitement becomes double when all the facilities are available on a beach and it has natural warm waters for bathing.

There are many people that head towards Spain when they have holidays because Spain is famous for having some of the worldâ€™s finest beaches. Most of these beaches are located in the cities around the coastal areas. Estepona is one of such cities because itâ€™s located on the front line of coastal area and it has some great beaches for the same reasons. As the city is modern having millions of visitors, the beaches of the city are also modern with all the modern day facilities available.

One of the finest beaches in the city of Estepona is La Rada. The length of this beach is 2300 meters and its width is 50 meters. The Estepona authorities have regenerated this beach in recent times and made it fabulous for enjoyment. The beach offers some great facilities like showers, cleanliness services, sport port, hammocks and similar other things. The location of the beach is ideal because itâ€™s located near the urban hull.

An outstanding work of Gothic architecture, this church is located in the old quarter of the town. The church is believed to have been built in the 14th century. The church is popular not only for its aesthetic beauty but is also one of the most religious places for the local population.

El Cristo is another fine beach in the city of Estepona. The length of this beach is 1300 meters and its width is 25 meters. It is not as big as La Rada is but this beach is delight in its own. This beach is located near the cityâ€™s sports port. This beach is famous because it has a nice cove and a zone protected from winds. This beach is also very modern because Estepona authorities have recently developed it well.

One of the largest beaches in the city of Estepona is Punta de Plata. The length of this beach is 4000 meters and it is having a width of 30 meters. The public abundance at this beach is moderate and there are some immaculate services available in some parts of this beach. It is liked by all visiting it.

There are various other beaches of Estepona which are frequently visited by the visitors to the city. These include magnificent beaches like Casasola, Saldillo, Arroyo de los Canos, Bella, Costa Natural, Arroyo Baquero, Bahia Dorada and La Galera. All of them are worth visiting for spending great times.
