Article published on March 8th 2012 | Travel

Any couple should be able to look back on their wedding day and say that it was the most enjoyable and memorable moment in their lives. To make sure that you remember your wedding day for the positive aspects and not any negative moments, it is important to plan for a wedding rehearsal. This involves a brief run through of the ceremony as well as a formal dinner with the wedding party, close friends and family. It is a somewhat more casual affair than the actual wedding day will be, but it is vital for planning out the day and making sure that there are no glitches with the ceremony. It is also a great time to celebrate the last day before marriage. If you are looking at venues for a wedding rehearsal downtown Pittsburgh is a great choice. Here are some things to look for in your wedding rehearsal venue.

The Right Sized Venue

The most important thing to consider when choosing a wedding rehearsal venue is that you need it to be the perfect size for your group. If the space too large, the room will look empty. On the other side of the equation is a space that is too small and causes overcrowding. Speak to the owners or managers of the venue in question to determine the ideal party size before letting them know how many guests you plan to invite. For those looking for a wide variety of options for a wedding rehearsal Pittsburgh may be the right choice to start your search.

Close to Transport Options

While it is quite common to enjoy a few alcoholic beverages during a wedding rehearsal Pittsburgh does not have an extensive public transport system for guests. Take care to choose a venue that is easily accessible by taxi for any guests who might need a ride home after the event.

Located Near Area Hotels

Weddings are often a time to gather family and friends in one location, meaning that many of your guests might be from out of town and require a hotel on the night before the wedding. Rather than forcing them to make a long drive after the wedding rehearsal, choose a venue in downtown Pittsburgh that is closely situated near to the many upscale hotels in the city.

Offers Guests Privacy for Speeches

Wedding rehearsals are often the perfect place to make toasts to your bridesmaids and family members, which might be a more intimate moment. If you are looking for a more private and exclusive venue for a wedding rehearsal downtown Pittsburgh has several great options.
