Article Side

Key Landmarks to Visit in New York City

by DJ Willis

Article published on February 2nd 2012 | Travel

With regards to determining things to do in New York City, there are several options to select from. Museum enthusiasts would need well over a week to determine all of the major NYC museums without rushing through the displays. Those who want to see popular landmarks won't be upset either since attractions such as the Empire State Building and the Statue of Liberty are easy to reach.

There are many ways to check out New York City. It is better to use the subway system, coach, or taxi. The wrong way to get it done is by using a personal vehicle since parking is very hard and also the traffic is quite bad. It can be very challenging to avoid getting lost whilst driving. This is exactly why driving is better left to others.

New York City is known for its many world renowned museums. Museum lovers realize that New York City is really as good as many other areas for example Paris and London. Probably the most famous NYC museums that everyone needs to visit is the Metropolitan Museum of Art that's on Fifth Avenue next to Central Park. The collection of art there is enormous with many internationally renowned pieces. This is a necessary stop for just about any museum lover.

There are lots of other world class museums included in things to do in New York City as well. Some of them include the Guggenheim Museum, the Museum of Modern Art, the Cloisters, and also the American Museum of Natural History. It might take well over a week to go to all the major museums. It will require even longer to go to most of the other museums that are within the city.

Within just Manhattan itself, there are many places to go to. Some of them range from the Empire State Building, Central Park, and Rockefeller Center. The Empire State building continues to be accessible to tourists who want to begin to see the skyline of the NYC area including Manhattan. This can be a fantastic way to see everything in NYC from up high.

Central Park is a large urban retreat where joggers, walkers, and families escape the hubbub of urban life in New York City. It is a great place to chill while seeing all of the tall buildings tower around it. Checking out the this park is a great time for you to go to the nearby museums too like the Met.

A trip to see everything in New York City wouldn't be complete without touring a few of the attractions in Lower Manhattan. Some of them include Chinatown, the Statue of Liberty on nearby Ellis Island, and the World Trade Center site. Chinatown in New York City is renowned for its genuine flavor and traditions. It's very simple when traveling to other local interesting attractions for example Wall Street and the World Trade Center site. Of course, the WTC is known for the biggest disaster in the 21st century to the United States Of America. It is a place to remember the ones that were lost on September 11th.

Just a short ferryboat ride from Lower Manhattan is the Statue of Liberty on Ellis Island. This was the landmark that's been seen by millions of immigrants as they completed their trip from the other side from the Atlantic. It's an inspiring look that most likely prompted the past's immigrants as well as today's tourists.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/travel-articles/key-landmarks-to-visit-in-new-york-city.htm - Article Side

DJ Willis - About Author:
When you are travelling to New York City attractions you will want to plan out your trip accordingly. There are many famous a places to visit in New Yorksuch as the Empire State Building, a the Statue of Liberty and museums to see.

Article Keywords:
attractions, destinations travel activities, places, travel and tourism, travel and leisure, travel, recreation

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!