People nowadays are taking investments quite seriously. They are thinking long term and opting for expert guidance to ensure better returns after certain period.

Investment options are many but only an expert financial planner will know which type of option will best suit you. This is where Michael Rabb from Newton stands apart from others. Being highly passionate about finance and investments, he has always dreamt of making it big. This is why he acquired enough qualification and experience so that he can operate independently as a financial advisor. He has a degree in economics from the University of Wisconsin and later completed specialization in taxation from the University of New Mexico. These educational qualifications helped in building a solid base which was further strengthened with his work experience. He started his career as an assistant financial advisor with a popular investment firm way back in 2000, in order to gather enough experience in this field. However, very soon he started his own investment firm. Now, he is the chief financial advisor and has appointed few support staff also to handle routine clerical jobs as well as the marketing part. He has also acquired professional designations so that he can practice as a Certified Public Accountant.

Often it can be seen that in spite of having enough qualification and experience many fail to excel in the field of investment planning, due to various reasons. Often the advisor fails to connect with his clients or gain their trusts. This is why Michael Rabb, Newton follows very careful steps from the beginning and stresses on properly studying the investment sector before starting his own venture. Till date, he has catered to wide range of clients having small or big portfolios. He makes sure that each of his clients gets individual attention and the best planning. His aim is to provide financial freedom to his clients. To ensure this, he monitors their portfolios on regular basis and does necessary changes as and when needed. The ultimate aim is to ensure that none of his clients incur losses. While doing the financial planning, he keeps in mind the client's requirements, i.e., by what time frame he wants the money back, what kind of returns he is expecting from his portfolio and so on. There are clients who don't mind taking little bit risks in order to gain in short term. Again, there are many who prefer to stick to safer options and want a steady return over a long term. His expertise doesn't lie only in investment or tax returns. Rather, he takes the responsibility to serve as your trustworthy financial advisor who can manage every aspect of your financial life. Many clients have benefited from his wise advices and hence rely on his decisions without any doubt. This is because they know that he always operates keeping the clients' interests in mind.
