1.Visit Barcelonaâ€™s Water Fronts

All who visited Barcelona during the Olympics in 1992 can testify to this. The Platja (beach) Barceloneta is a runway of sand with food courts and array of bars and night spots and is suitable for all ages and personalities. The activities here are also captivating and beyond enjoyable.

2.Visit Parc Guell - Antoni Gaudi - Park Guell

A unique playground for all to enjoy. This was designed by a local named Gaudi. He loved animals and this inspired him in his architectural designs of the park, which has lizards, animals and birds in its structure. The project was established to build 60 houses for the middle class people in Barcelona. It gives one a spectacular view of Barcelona city.

3.Sagrada Familia Barcelona (Holy Family)

Even those that are not Catholics by Faith can visit this magnificent architectural building. It commenced construction in 1883 through the inspiration of Antoni Gaudi who died in 1926. Due to a fire during the Spanish civil war in his office, the official ideas from his blueprint were destroyed. The building however is grand in nature and a true inspiration to all visitors that a humble man in such a decade could have had such massive ideas.

4.Tapa Evening Walks

Take a tour with a local guide and visit the best tapa bars and cafes in Barcelona. Not only will you enjoy the various cuisine delicacies but also learn about the culture and traditions in Barcelona.

5.Las Ramblas

This is a truly breathtaking walkway. It is sided by well lined trees and is neatly pavemented. It is subdivided into 5 sections which are worth visiting. It has a small stream that runs though the walkway and is said that when one drinks from the fountain here you will always return to Barcelona. For bird lovers here, you will be thrilled at the various species of birds, their glowing colors and sweet chimes. They are well taken care of in cages that make it easier for one to admire.

There are cafes and bars in Barcelona at every nook and corner. One can choose the cafÃ© or there bar according to their needs. There are also some great restaurants in Barcelona where one can get nice and tasty food.

6.Dine and enjoy the flamenco shows

For those who love to wine and dance. This is an exotic activity to take part in. Enjoy the heat from the food, the heat from the night and the heat from the passion in the rhythm and dance the night away Barcelonian style.
