Now letâ€™s take a look at New York City by day and as well as by night.

The Big City by Day

Exploring New York City by day is a lot of fun. There is so much to do that it will take you at least a week or two to see it all. This is one of the many reasons itâ€™s important to find a long term stay hotel in New York. There would be no sense in visiting for just a few days because you wouldnâ€™t get the full experience. The most important things you should know about the big city by day is that downtown is the artistic area as well as where you will find Chinatown, Little Italy and the Financial District. Uptown is mostly residential, but itâ€™s nice to explore because itâ€™s so quiet compared to the rest of the city. Midtown is unreal. This is where the energy is at its peak. You can visit Times Square, Central Park, Rockefeller Center, hundreds of unique stores and restaurants, and you can see a Broadway show.

The Big City by Night

If youâ€™re a social butterfly or adventurer, youâ€™ve come to the right place. Some people take advanta of extended stay hotels in Midtown New York and use it as a home base. This way, you will have easy access to sophisticated art events, insane nightclubs with 5 floors of different themes, grunge clubs, hip hop concerts and so much more. Also be sure to hit 2nd Avenue for a meal or two. This is an especially great idea in the summer since most restaurants offer outdoor dining.

Use the information above as a guide for your New York City adventure. If you choose to visit New York City, youâ€™re going to love it.
