The Bright City of Valencia by Nancy Gallen

Article published on July 2nd 2012 | Travel

Spain has very many and big cities all of which act as perfect grounds for a holiday. Valencia is one of the big cities in the country and also happens to be among the liveliest. It is a city that experiences great numbers of tourists especially because it is located on the Mediterranean Sea. The location means that beaches are in abundance and since they are what most tourists look for, you will find the city crowded most of the times.

Summer months are of course the peak season and the traffic of tourists coming here is quite heavy. It is a city that opens great fun possibilities from sports such as cycling, diving, tennis and golf among many others to the nightlife that is wild and the rich culture. It can therefore be the very vest decision that you can ever make as far as a holiday destination is concerned. It is a city from which you can expect everything well wrapped and waiting for you to enjoy and explore.

The trade fairs held here which are of great importance have of course proven that this is dynamic Spanish city. You will find most attractive the city of science and an art that has been constructed here thereby boosting the cityâ€™s architecture that is simply extravagant. It is one of the spectacles that you cannot miss out on while in this bright city of Valencia.

A holiday is never complete without some great food. Luckily, you will find very delicious dishes in Valencia with the most popular being Paella Valenciana , Sant Antoni de Calonge Villas which is typical to the city. The history of the city is also rich and you will enjoy learning a few things about the fight against Moors and also take part in the different festivals which take place here. Most of the villages found around Valencia have a historical value to them and they are worth visiting during your tour in the area.

Valencia is also home to some of the best international sports such as the Grand Prix involving formula 1 and the Americaâ€™s cup. The street circuit where the grand prix takes place has managed to boost the value of this city. It is therefore not a wonder that you will find it being mentioned more than once by many sports lovers. It is a great place to spend fun city to spend a holiday in.
