They really want to fill up these seats, even if they have to offer lower rates. In fact, shifting your flight and hotel booking dates by a few days can even save you hundreds of dollars.

If you are serious about saving some big bucks, you wouldnâ€™t mind traveling on a vacation a few days off the planned schedule. Even though searching where to find cheap flights is an important part of the deal, but being flexible with your traveling schedule can be a big plus to savings. Another thing you can do to save money is to book your vacation packages during off-peak season. Peak season means more travelers and both airlines and hotels donâ€™t have any interest in offering lower prices.
