Brugge (Bruges) Things to Do by Lek Boonlert

Article published on November 29th 2011 | Travel Tips

There are many things to do in Brugge that will interest all kinds of visitors. Culturally, there are numerous ways to explore the history of the city and surrounding areas. The Grote Markt, the â€œbig squareâ€• in the centre of Brugge, is home to the Belfry where you can climb up the 366 steps to the top of the tower and enjoy the incredible views across the city and hear the bells ring.

Venture out of the many lovely hotels in Brugge to take to the skies with a ride on a balloon and see the sights of the city from a truly original point of view. This really is an exciting way to spend your holiday and is great fun for visitors of all ages.

If you enjoy being active, you can take a walk along the canal to see the medieval gates that once controlled the traffic in and out of Brugge; or if you are feeling very adventurous, take a run around the 7km circle of the old centre of Brugge â€“ the scenery is stunning.

Groeninge Museum is known as the â€œCity Museum of Fine Arts,â€• and houses a collection of art spanning six centuries that focuses mainly on local artists who lived or worked in Brugge.

Visiting the Jerusalem Church will allow you not only to see the very unusual church with an octagonal tower, Gothic stained glass and a chapel containing an effigy of the dead Christ, but also grants you entry to the Lace Museum where you can witness locals learning the craft of lace making.
