Goa has always attracted tourists from everywhere. It provides a weekend escape to city people, especially Mumbai. Then there are honeymooners who like to start their life from the tranquility of beaches. There are people with idea of beach camping and having dinner around bonfire. Love of seafood also draws people from every corner of India. Also, there are provisions for foreign travelers with ways and means to explore the actual Goa that live in the villages that would be far less crowded and more welcoming. The greenery will charm you like anything and you will not wish to end this dream of yours that is for the time being named Goa tour. People from other countries find India travel a bit difficult due to improper management at many places. Still, they are fascinated to see what they have heard about a lot. Goa is among such destinations.

During India travel, you would come across various states. One would be different to other so vastly as if they are not different states but different country all together with altogether different set of traditions and culture. Goa tour will present itself as an excellent opportunity in this reference, to let you compare it with other parts of India as far as culture is considered. Mughal and Portuguese rulers have left their signs in the architecture of Goa and that is telling the history Goa has lived. One can always go and visit forts made in that era with those telltale signs of history. History lover can have a great time enjoying the tour.

Beaches of Goa are very popular. People can be seen enjoying beach sun tanning their body while they relax or have fun in beach sports or water sports. Any Goa tour would surely take you to some of the very popular beaches here. Baga, Anjuna, Candolim, Dona Paula, Arambol, Palolem, Vagator, Morjim, Mandrem and Colva beach to name a few. One could very easily find a beach facing room in hotels nearby. They charge a bit higher than those without any beach-facing feature. Trip to Goa is one of the most happening parts of India travel. You have to take it to know it.

One can find excellent travel packages for a Goa tour. It is convenient as well as affordable at many times if taken after careful consideration. With Accommodations and tickets already set, one has very few things to worry about on a journey, especially during India travel. So Welcome to Goa!
