India is a birthplace of several religions, which have decisive impacts on the life of its people from their birth to death. Almost every person dwelling here is affected by some spirituality or philosophy, and itâ€™s not without a reason. This spiritualism bestows them something special, significant and wrathful out of this materialistic world. There are many religious destinations in India, and Shirdi is one of them. Nestled in the Ahmednagar district of Maharashtra, this holy place is the hometown of Shri Sai Baba, the foremost saint of modern India. As per the Hindu myths, Sai Baba was an avatar of Lord Krishana or Dattatreya. He came to the village Shirdi around 1855 and stayed here till his death. Sai Baba taught people a moral conduct of love, forgiveness and helping others. Also, there are several stories of miracles associated with him. The Shirdi temple is built over the Samathi of Sai Baba, and is a beautiful shrine frequented by millions of devotees every year.

When is the best time to visit Shirdi? Well, Shirdi is a famous pilgrim center where devotees come all through the year to catch a glimpse of the place where Baba once lived. However, masses of crowds are seen touring this legendry town during the festivals of Ramanavami, Guru Purnima and Shirdi Vilyadashmi. At the time of these festivals, the city becomes colorful, hosting many singing programs devoted to Sai Baba.

When it comes to stay in Shirdi, plenty of options are available. The town has a complete range of accommodations, from pricy luxury hotels of affordable ones, and provides the devotees quality stay as per their preference and budget. Luxury hotels are usually equipped with modern amenities and high standard of room services. A/c rooms, Internet access, laundry service, conference hall, Jacuzzi, swimming pool and some indoor/outdoor sports, luxury hotels in Shirdi have added another feather in the cap of this legendry city. Some five star hotels in Shirdi include Hotel Shraddha Inn, Sun n Sand Hotel, Hotel Bhagyalaxmi and Hotel Goradia etc. Besides this, a handful of options are available for budget travelers as well. Many budget-friendly Shirdi hotels provide comfy accommodation within easy financial frame. Some of the budget Shirdi hotels are Hotel Ashoka Executive, Hotel utsav and Icchapurthi Sai Residency.

During festival season, this holy town draws huge crowds; hence it becomes quite difficult to find a suitable accommodation. Itâ€™s therefore recommended to book your hotel well in advance if you plan to visit Shirdi in peak season. Surely, Internet is the right option to do so. There are many travel sites, which provide information about the availability and booking of Shirdi hotels. Booking online is quite easy, and may save a considerable amount of time and money.
