Jim Corbett National Park: a Date with the Wilderness by Editor123

Article published on November 28th 2011 | Travel Tips

If you have ever been to the Jim Corbett National Park, you are probably aware of the kind of excitement it throws at you. And if you are yet to experience its many sights and sounds, or are planning to visit it shortly, you can surely look forward to a breathtaking and memorable experience.

India is a land of rich biological diversity. The flora and fauna of the land will overwhelm you with their diversity. Jim Corbett National Park of India, located in the Garhwal region of Northern India, offers a unique window to this rich variety. It showcases much of the plant and animal life indigenous to the region, and brings one into perfect harmony with Nature in her most pristine form.

Jim Corbett National Park, named after the famous English author and hunter who used to live in the region almost a hundred years back, is a well-known tiger reserve for the country, and is one of the very few places on the planet where you can still spot some genuine specimens of panthera tigris in their natural habitat.

Besides the usual thrills of going out on a jeep or elephant safari and getting to spot wild animals in their natural surroundings, the Corbett National Park of India also lets you enjoy the mesmerizing charm of the region. The close proximity of the mighty Himalayan range, the lush green forests all around, the sounds of Himalayan rivers flowing by, the chill in the air â€“ all contribute towards making up a Corbett experience that is simply incomparable. North India has a very distinctive charm and Jim Corbett National Park is a great place to experience the essence of that charm.

If you are worrying over accommodation facilities, you will be much relieved to learn that there are some excellent hotels and resorts in the region where you can put yourself up with your family and friends for a secure and comfortable stay at a very competitive cost. Most of the better ones among them provide their guests with a range of services to make their stay even more enjoyable, such as arranging for local sightseeing and safaris, short cultural programs in the evenings showcasing local talents, a richly varied cuisine with delectable delicacies from near and far, and more!
