Saving money on airfares and getting the best deals is every traveler's goal and for every business traveler getting a last minute cheap Business Class airfare is the icing on the cake. But to get these last minute cheap airfares requires quick action at the very last minute which can save you money! Here are some tips to getting a cheap economy or business class airfares for local and international travel.

If you are keeping a close watch over such websites, you can easily make a good bargain and book tickets in surprisingly cheap rates. The passengers can easily find the websites that provide cheapest airfares as well as comparison of the different airlines by doing simple search using search engines. It is always better to seek websites that gives a comparison of the different airline fares since that would help in getting valuable and useful information. Look for websites that would give exclusive information on hotel bookings, travel arrangements etc.

BE FLEXIBLE. Be flexible with timings, which airlines and airport you fly from and also possibly having to take a couple of flights to get there! Business travelers after cheap business class airfares also have to be flexible with early morning flights and changing planes. Flying out of smaller airports is another option as smaller airports often also means lower airport fees, so there is already an immediate saving.

CREDIT CARD DEALS. Many major credit card companies have some great 1 for 1 Business Class airfare deals that are often hard to believe or beat. Some major international airlines have also jumped on the bandwagon by doing special promos on Business class fares for two passengers traveling together. When looking for fares online make sure you enter the correct number of passengers as some of these couple fares only appear when you indicate it's for two people.

WEB & MEMBERS ONLY DEALS. To clear remaining seats, airlines will often post last minute domestic and international deals online as web-only fares. Quite often International Airlines will also advertise these fares last minute cheap fares via newsletters to their pool of email subscribers. Sign up for these airline newsletters as they are often sent out to members before airlines advertise online. But take note that these fares will usually be seriously discounted and consequently be very restricted and non refundable.

WHOLESALEERS. Larger wholesalers or consolidators buy large quantities of tickets, including some business class fares from airlines at discounted bulk prices, so sometimes they are able to sell these fares at cheaper than even the airline's own websites!

TIMING IS CRUCIAL. Avoid traveling in peak season, but if you have to travel during peak holiday seasons - book in advance! Finding last minute deals at peak holiday seasons is nearly impossible! Be prepared that travel in peak season is expensive, so getting any discounted Business Class Fares will be hard unless you book well in advance. Traveling in low season or off peak periods is another good way to get some cheap business class airfares as airlines try to clear seats.
