India was a union of kingdoms before the independence from the colonial rule and is considered as one of the most beautiful nations in the face of the planet earth. It is a nation with a diverse beauty of all forms that is ever existent on the face of the planet and thus this country has become the heartthrob of many tourists across the globe. The fact of the matter remains that there are many things to explore in this wonderful nation and the tourist gets ample opportunity to explore what he really needs in terms of beauty and adventure. India is a blend of the natural beauty of places in Kashmir, Ladakh and Himachal and the pristine elegance of the architecture of the ancient and medieval times and this is what is reflected in the caves of Ajanta in Aurangabad in the western part of India and the very old temples of south India like the rock fort temple and the Brihdeshwarar temple of Tamil Nadu. The elegance of the architecture cannot be described in words. The beaches and the backwater destinations of the southern part of the country reflect a different form of beauty. The beach of Kovallam will make you wonder with its soothing waves and the greenery that will relish your eyes. The amazing backwaters of Kerala in Kovallam and Allepy are comparable only to the landscapes of Venice. These a just a few places to visit in India apart from many that are located in the north, south, east, west and the central parts of the country.

India is divided into zones when it comes to the visiting of the destinations of this country and you have got some wonderful tour packages in India that will provide you the set of trips depending on your choice. It also depends on the purpose of the visit to this country. If you are the old couple, you will go for the temple destinations of all parts of India, if you have come for the honeymoon you may land in the beach destinations like the splendid Goa or the pristine hill stations of north, south east and west India and some of them are Gulmarg, Shimla, Kodaikanal, Ooty, Munnar, Mahabaleshwar, Darjeeling and many more. The hill stations have a climate that is cool and thus these are places provide a climatic drift from the comparatively hotter planes. They are quite ideal for celebrating the honeymoon.

You can see various tourist destinations in India and some of the wonderful architectural marvels in this country are classified according to the periods and these are the ancient, the medieval, the early modern and the modern ones. There are some temples that were constructed during the ancient and the medieval times and among them are the Tirupati Balaji temple, the Padmanabaswamy temple, Dakshineshear temple and much more. Rajasthan glorifies the country with its wonderful forts and palaces of medieval times and Taj is a wonder that testifies India as an eternal soil of beauty, love and romance.
