Why Customised Holidays are better than Standard Tour Packages

Standard tour packages mean travelling in big groups. Travelling with strangers can be delightful if you strike a chord with them in the course of your travel. But there might be times when surprises disappoint rather than delight.

Space and Freedom:

Customised holidays give you the space to be yourself. They donâ€™t tie you to a schedule full of activities and a bus full of strangers. You will have the space for a quiet breakfast one morning and a strenuous hike the next. You have the freedom to take decisions about your travel itinerary. From your preferred route and mode of transport to the activities and the companions of your choice, the traveller chooses for him/herself.

Accommodation:

Accommodation is a major concern while travelling through a tour package. You have little choice but to stay in the accommodation provided to you as part of your package. This means that you might have to compromise on the quality of your accommodation for the lack of choice. This can be completely avoided in a customised holiday. Your accommodation must not only be comfortable but it also needs to suit your budget. If you are moving on a shoestring budget, then camp it out. You will find many others like you, camping their way through their travel. There are chances of developing camaraderie with fellow travellers. Such instances are unique and make for remarkable travel experiences.

Unique Destinations:

Almost all tour packages include the popular tourist locations in their sightseeing schedule. These places are often quite crowded, expensive and completely commercial in nature. Visiting just these places hardly completes your travel experience. In case of customised holidays you can pick the places of your choice. Some tour operators specialise in specific destinations. For example a company that specialises in Scotland travel may offer travel options which are hard to find elsewhere. Whereas, those who specialise in tailor made holidays in India may send you to places you never knew existed.

Cater to your interests:

Whether you are interested in scuba diving, the archaeology of a place, plain sightseeing or all of it, your customised holidays can include it. Moreover last minute change in plans can also be accommodated if required.

With an increasing number of travellers opting for tailor made holidays, India is also witnessing a rise in this trend. While most companies seem to make similar offerings, on closer look youâ€™ll find that each has a different style of serving their client base. Standard tour companies often extend an excellent mix of services bundled into customised holidays to suit their clientâ€™s requirements.
