Tuscany - the beautiful place to visit in a lifetime â€“ would not be complete without a wine tour. A visit to one of the regionâ€™s famous wineries, while staying at luxury villas, will make your trip to Tuscany the most memorable.

Well known as one of the most important wine producing regions in Italy, Tuscany is also beautiful with numerous vineyards. On your wine tour to Tuscany, you will be able to find many traditional as well as modern wineries of all sizes. The different wineries range from large co-operative organizations to small operations that have been run by a single family for generations.

If you are confused about where to start then the best thing is to opt for the wine tours, you can start this with a very short introductory course at the Tuscan Wine School where you can learn about the basics of wine tasting. Here, as per your convenience and tour period, you can sign up for a short-term 2 hour class that will cover all the primary things â€“ including how to taste wine, the types of grape grown in the region and details to look for when you read wine labels.

With this knowledge, you will be ready to explore this wine country and can have a great fun. Chianti is a good place to start for wine tasting. This wine producing region is also world famous for red wines, which have been enjoyed for many years. Moreover, you can even head to Lucca and Montecarlo for a unique wine tasting experience or Brunello di Montalcino for a taste of what is often referred to as the most expensive wine in Italy.

Tuscany also produces white wines, which are in demand. You would surely wish to spend some time exploring these, as well as the regions for red wines. Particularly, you can find Vin Santo, the famous dessert wine that is worth sampling. No doubt, it is always easier to travel by car between these wineries unless you have signed up for a wine tour where transportation is included â€“ so you need to make sure that you have at least one member of your group to act as a designated driver. This will surely ensure that every member of your group to take driverâ€™s seat. This will definitely ensure that everyone in your party has a safe and enjoyable time as you have enough time to explore this exciting region of Italy.

Apart from wines, Tuscany is also famous world over for its culinary tradition. The gastronomic delights with a glass of fine wine make your meal a delight to cherish.

So staying at one of the Tuscany villas, you can enjoy a great holiday with a feast and Tuscan wine that eases your senses. So, what are you waiting for, book a holiday villa to have a marvelous holiday.
