Printing your favourite photos onto canvas has never been so much fun that it is now, there is so many different things you can achieve from printing photos to canvas and Iâ€™m going to cover a few of those amazing little add ones you can have to make your canvas photo print then best as it possibly can be.

Firstly if you have lots for photos you want on canvas but your budget is low or you just want to give away a gift to someone but you cannot decide upon which photos to use then you can have all of your photos arranged next to each other on one single canvas print, thatâ€™s right you can have all your favourite photos on one canvas print and you will get the same effect as having lots of canvas prints done in one go, this would be a very good idea if you wanted to give a canvas print or some canvas prints away as a present to that someone special as you can have lots of different moments in your life displayed on one single artwork peaces and when they look at the picture as a whole they will be able to all the good time youâ€™re have had together so far in your lives.

So having canvas prints made from photos collages is a great way to have your photos printed, another great way to have your photos printed would be to have one very special photo close to you printed over the whole canvas and to have the image wrapped around the sides of the frame to has a really great look to it to as if you have the collage canvas print done it looks really great on the face of the canvas prints as sometimes itâ€™s better for you to do this as you may lose some of the important parts of the image around the frame of the canvas, if you have just the one image then you can get away with having the wrapped sides and it still looking very good, also once you have decided that you want this effect you can also go for an even better effect with how your picture will look and one really great way to do this would be to have an effect called colour splash effect done to your photo before printing, this effect is basically having most of the image either black and white or in sepia effect then you would leave certain parts of the image in colour that would stand out of the photograph the most. This is a brilliant way to have your photos printed to canvas as it looks very modern and unique to.

One other way to get the best out of having a canvas print made would be to choose which size thickness frame you would like as there is a few different types of size frames you can have your canvas mounted over and having the gallery option with your canvas photo print can really make a big difference to the look and finish of your artwork on canvas, although the 18mm frame does look really good to so having the standard thickness frame that most canvas prints use is still a great way to have your canvas prints mounted, itâ€™s just if you wanted it to look that little bit extra special the gallery 38mm frames look amazing.
