Although, playing board games is the all-time favorite family past time; branding strategies play a vital role in the sales of these games.

Let's have a look at some of the top board games of the century and their logo designs that have made a distinct place for themselves.

1. Monopoly:

This is probably the most widely recognized brand mark in the world. The red colored rectangular background combined with thick, white colored fonts make it attractive and business-like. The emblem also consists of the popular image of Mr. Monopoly which has recently been given 3 dimensional effects that makes him look life-like. This monogram resembles the addicting games logo as far as fonts are concerned.

2. Samurai:

The trademark of this game compliments its Asian setting. The prominent color in the design is brown that gives it an earthy look. The textured background combined with jagged and sharp-edged fonts add character to the image. The Japanese symbol completes the Asian look of the monogram.

3. Risk:

The primary purpose of this strategic board game is world domination. This makes the game aggressive and the same is reflected in their trademark. Their monogram consists of bright red colored text over a black background. There is a silhouette of a warrior on a horse encased in the letter 'R' that makes it imaginative and traditional.

4. Candyland:

This board game is targeted towards young children and their business symbol has been designed accordingly. The monogram has been created in pink and white stripes that resemble a candy. The upper case of the text combined with soft edges gives it a playful yet proficient look.

5. Dungeons and Dragons:

This is one of the most popular emblems in the gaming world. This business symbol may appear to be simple at first sight but careful observation shows a deeper meaning of the elements used in the design. The ampersand in the image is actually a golden colored dragon while the gothic style of the fonts makes it primitive and imaginative. The text is written in bright red color but if you observe carefully, you will notice that there is an illusion of fire at the bottom of the text.

6. Scrabble:

This famous intellectual game's business mark has been revamped quite a few times. A design that started off with simple and thick fonts over a bright, red colored background has been recreated into wavy lines and curvy fonts that seem to give it a sense of movement. The color of the background has been deepened which makes it as perfect for pc games logo as it is for a board game.

In conclusion, a factor that sets these emblems apart from the rest is a reflection of the product's unique features. This makes their design memorable and distinct.
