Interesting Traditions of American Wedding Ceremony by Beyonce Knowles

Article published on August 24th 2012 | Weddings

The essence of a wedding ceremony is that two people come together and decide to share both their sorrow and happiness in the rest of their life. To the American wedding ceremony , this is no exception. Traditional American weddings are always held in a church with the presence of both family and friends to witness  the historical moment. But thatâ€™s all, weddings may also taken place in chapels, this is especially popular in Las Vegas. Some couples even choose garden or beach as the wedding place. Wherever your hold your wedding ceremony, letâ€™s have a look of those interesting traditions and customs of An American Wedding.

Something Old, Something New

If you are a native American and if you have already attended several wedding ceremonies, you must be quite familiar with the saying â€˜ something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, a silver sixpence inside you shoeâ€™. The catchy sound of the rhyme sounds quite interesting. Actually , no one definitely know when the tradition starts , maybe from Victorian period, or even earlier. Nevertheless, let me give you a explain you the slang. Something old stands for those who have already got married present at the spousal. Something new represents the new couple who will start their new life. Something borrowed intimates something must give back ,for instance , the veil she lent from her motherâ€™s wedding gown. Something blue insinuates the purity of brides. To the sixpenny, according to the tradition, a silver coin should be tucked into one of the shoes of bride so as to base a hope of prosperity and rich.

Wedding Gowns

For contemporary wedding ceremony, when we speak of wedding gowns, we may naturally believe that they should in white or ivory, because the elegant color always stand for purity. The popularity of white wedding dresses origins from Victorian period. At that time, wearing white dresses are thought to be a symbol of affluence because they are easily to get dirty and will be only worn once.

It seems that people today hold a strong interest in white wedding gown, while in the past , black wedding dress can also be chosen at the ceremony. Dresses in this versatile color are always proficient in flattering the silhouette and setting off the femaleâ€™s skin and figure.

But there still exist some taboos with the wedding dresses. One of the most common superstitions is that the groom should not see the bride in her wedding dress before the nuptial. Another common superstition is that the bride should avoid wearing the dress before the nuptial because this is thought to be unlucky. At that time, the bride will place full trust on the dress-maker, so some tailor will even leave the stitches unfinished until the last moment the bride step onto the carpet.

Wedding  Bonquet

The tradition of wedding bonquet lasts a long time. What kind of flowers the bride take at the ceremony may reflect the mood of the bridesmaids. Lilies known as purity, roses stands for passion, lavender for shy and peony signifies grand and majestical.

In the past ,those brides prefer to take those plants with strong fragrance because it is said that it would be helpful to pursue fortune and avoid disaster.

Maid Of Honor And Bridesmaid Dresses

According to the tradition that the bride need the companionship of the bridesmaids because with the cluster round of those ladies, the evils would not distinguish who is bride and then leave away.

Nowadays, the bridesmaids should also become scenery at the wedding. So picking suitable dresses for them are as equally important as choosing the right wedding gown. Typically , the color of bridesmaid dresses should in coordinate with the wedding theme. Therefore , the color is always a little lighter than the principal color tone of the wedding .

Flowers Girls

Flowers girls are always cute little girls who walk ahead of the queue. They scatter flowers on the carpet which is thought to be helpful to expel devils.

At present , we can still see the attendance of flower girls at a wedding, but sometimes they do not strew petals anymore, instead, they catch a small bonquet or a basket of flowers.

There are still many interesting traditions of American wedding, but now I have already say a lot, if you are interested in the topic ,you can search the net to find more related information.
