Everyone's wedding day is unique and special, but there are certain flowers that we all die for when talking about that special day. And even though many of us might use the same flowers we all used them in different ways, that is what makes our special day unique.

Through this article, I will take you down a very special garden so that you can pick some of the most wanted wedding flowers for your special day.

What would the world be like without roses? They are well known to inspire love and love and beauty, they also impose great elegance. From experience, roses are easy to work with. They allow themselves to be used in different types of arrangements such as kissing balls, centerpieces, bridal or bridesmaid bouquets. You can never go wrong with roses, especially these days when rose varieties keep increasing.

Along the same path, we have tall calla lilies which are beautiful and elegant. They do not require much effort since because they are beautiful just as they are. Commonly used for bridal bouquets, calla lily flowers only need around half a dozen callas wrapped with a stunning ribbon and you have yourself a beautiful bouquet. Mini callas are also well known to fit perfectly for grooms boutonnieres. Most brides go for the classic white callas, while others take risks and use more colorful ones. Either way, all calla lilies add elegance and beauty to wedding portraits.

If you have always dreamed of beauty and elegance for your wedding, but you are under a budget, ranunculus flowers are the perfect choice. They will not only suit your budget but also are the closest choice to roses and peonies. They also come in many different colors, open beautifully, and look extremely sweet and romantic.

For a vintage or an antique wedding, gardenias are the most wanted. These majestic flowers inspire purity, love and devotion. Moreover, gardenia flowers embellish your wedding flowers and decor to a platinum level. For white colored weddings, these flowers will scream elegance. If you wish to add a little bit of color, they go well with roses or colorful anemones.

Anemone flowers are the latest trend for weddings, and are simple, amazingly beautiful and unique in their kind. These flowers have gained a strong position in the wedding flower business lately. The white anemone with the black center is the perfect choice for an all black and white wedding. For a more spring or summer like wedding, anemones also come in bright stunning colors.

Most, if not all of these wedding flowers, are extremely popular by diy brides, wedding planners and florists. That is why they are qualified as the most wanted flowers for wedding.
