Many women who want to get married have notions of a dream wedding with their version of a prince charming. They imagine it to be the grandest and most memorable event in their life, carrying all the elements of a fairy tale romance. The mere thought of it, in fact, could sometimes make their hearts beat faster.

Though not always, dreams can also translate well into reality if one puts his heart and mind into it. And because a wedding make for an unforgettable event, it's very important to see to its planning and coordination. How it is conducted could set the tone for the honeymoon later on and, more importantly, for the couple's married life.

One of the most pressing decisions couples make is the venue of the ceremony. For the religious and tradition bound, there would be no other option but inside a church or another place of worship. Most couples nowadays, however, do not limit their choices for the wedding venue; they just let their imagination lead them to the most suitable choice.

Some would choose a garden setting or a sunset wedding on a beach for added romance. Others would opt for a mountain resort wedding, and the more daring get married while skydiving. No wedding venue is impossible for those with the wildest imaginations and who are not constrained by customs.

In the US, one of the most popular venues for weddings is the Napa Valley in California. It is located north of the San Francisco Bay area, famous for some of its breathtaking views including vineyards and wineries and luxurious resorts. Some of the popular wedding venues in Napa Valley include the Beaulieu Garden, the Carneros Inn, and the Meadowood Resort. Each venue offers a unique charm and ambience for a memorable wedding ceremony.

Napa Valley wedding venues provide the couple and their guests an environment that captures their romantic moods to the fullest. For example, at the Beaulieu Garden, the bridal entourage will enter a long tree-lined driveway to an estate with sunken gardens, a swimming pool, and a trellised dining area. On the other hand, the Carneros Inn has been voted as one of the Top 25 Romantic Getaways in the World by Travel and Leisure Magazine.

Many wedding venues in Napa Valley CA can be used to suit whichever theme the couples choose for the ceremony. If you want a wedding based on another era, or culture-based theme, or whichever motif you may want, these venues can provide the setting.
