Are there any plans to visit the city of Adelaide? It is one of the best cities in Australia. It is home to the legendary cricketer Sir Donald Bradman. However, a tour to Adelaide is simply incomplete if one has not undertaken a trip to Barossa valley. It is a major wine producing region and a tourist destination located 60 km northeast of Adelaide. The valley has been formed by the North Para River. The Barossa valley way is the main road through the valley, which connects the main towns. Since, it is a major wine producing region the Barossa winery tours are something, which is a must.

There are plenty of tour operators in Adelaide who conduct tours to this wonderful valley. The ideal time to undertake a tour will be during the summer months. As a visitor, once the booking has been done with any of these tour operators, one will get a personalized introduction to the cultural aspects of this valley. Is there a desire to discover exception wines? This is the ideal chance to taste some delicious wine prepared in these vineyards. The vineyards also serve a social purpose as it is a source of employment for the local population.

The Barossa Valley private wine tours are just great if they can coincide with the week long Barossa Valley vintage festival. It is a festival that is held every two years. If one is on the look out for some delicious food and wines this is a perfect occasion to be here in this valley. If there is a plan to visit this valley in August, one may coincide this visit with the Barossa Gourmet weekend. It is also festival time, when one has the liberty to taste mouth watering food and delicious wine. Hence, this is a region without which a visit to South Australia is simply incomplete.
