How many of us in this world think we have to honest at the first place. We know it is very difficult to live in this world if we are not honest. Of course on the other hand we have seen people who are not honest; these people have made money quick time. For them they have a perception that they can do anything to make money. Due to this people many people do not follow things systematically and find shortcuts to grow. That could be one of the reasons people who have been honest all their life have not benefited much out of it. One of the facts is that honest people can be cheated easily. When people who are honest, undertakes any kind of work, they tend to do them very systematically. The others who look at these try to take advantage of these facts. There are many case studies that different people take up about in various sectors of life. Not only this, we might have heard stories from our elders or come across lessons in our schools. However, how many of us remember the little values that we studied as we were young.

Having spoken so much let look at what honesty means. It is quite simple to define honest. A simple way to say this is honesty is quality. It describes things as it is or another way to put is; it is an accurate representation of who the world is, that could at least from our own perception. Honesty plays a major role when it comes to perceptions and mostly depends on the complexity of a situation or a sentence. Say for example you are talking about the sky and you make a statement like â€˜the sky is blueâ€™, here honesty means tell the truth that is quite simple. However, when you talk about a taste or a feeling then you need to say. At this instance honesty means to put up your opinion, which is true. However, if we look into the dictionaries, honesty is not just a word. It could be a characteristic of an act, behavior or personality.

All these could differ say for example, if we go and ask a criminal for some facts, then, he might say a lot of things during a course of a day. This necessarily cannot be a truth by itself. Hence, it becomes complicated to distinguish between what is truth and what is not. Hence, when it comes to grouping under honest or dishonest. It cannot be grouped under dishonesty for; we cannot find a truth under the instance. If we look further into the introspection of what honesty is, then we can say that honesty is all about trust. This could be a point of view from a third person. It is all about convincing a person about believing something when said or trusting. This could be about trusting others to be able to deal with the truth as we report it.

Letâ€™s look into some of the situations that might lead to dishonesty. The first instance where a person can be dishonest is when he is in need for something and does not give it in return. Hence a person has to say many things in that context, in order to get what he wants. The second instance lies when a person is afraid of being punished over a mistake that is already committed. The third context comes when you feel somebody night feel hurt when you say something. This could sometimes turn out to be a positive aspect in few instances. Due to this reason the truth is hiding from a concerned individual. Likewise there are numerous instances that can be quoted. We might have seen a reality show featuring on our television. Some of these concentrate on the concept of truth behind a situation. I have seen a lot of these on my television powered by Xfinity Deals.
